Your Weekly Revision Planner

Revision works best in short, focused sessions with a clear target — not long, vague hours "going over notes". Use this sheet to plan one week at a time: pick your priorities, timetable them, then tick them off.

THIS WEEK'S TIMETABLE

Week commencing: _____

SUBJECT / TOPIC	SESSION LENGTH	DONE
Monday		☐
Tuesday		☐
Wednesday		☐
Thursday		☐
Friday		☐
Saturday		☐
Sunday		☐

TIP

Little and often beats one long session — four 25-minute blocks across the week will stick better than one 2-hour cram.

Revision Techniques That Actually Work

Tick these off as you build them into your week. Mixing techniques keeps revision active instead of passive — and active recall is what makes information stick.

- [ ] Timed past papers
  Practise under real exam conditions, then mark against the grade boundaries — not just "do questions".

- [ ] Quote & flashcard drilling
  Test yourself on quotes and techniques little and often, not all in one sitting the night before.

- [ ] The five-step essay plan
  Use the Essay Plan Method sheet to plan a paragraph or full essay from memory, without notes.

- [ ] Teach it out loud
  Explain a theme or technique as if teaching someone else — gaps in your explanation show gaps in your knowledge.

- [ ] Mixed recall quizzes
  Test topics out of order, not in the sequence you learned them — this mirrors how the exam will actually ask.

REMEMBER

You don't need to use all five every week. Pick two or three that suit the topic, and rotate the rest in over time.
